Seven Mile Beach

Government spokesperson Rowan Dix 'Fight looms over golf course plan' (Mercury 1 December 2011) refers to a management plan for the Seven Mile peninsula which he claims 'allowed for sustainable tourism development'. In March 2009 the state government notified the TCT that a draft management plan had been produced and would soon be released for public comment. But to our knowledge it was never released publicly or finalised. There is no management plan, so how can Mr Dix claim it supports tourism development?

Can Mr Dix either release the management plan he claims exists or admit that he made an untruthful statement in referring to one.
