Media Release

5 March 2007

New era for logging

Tasmania's peak conservation group has today participated in the formal launch of the Forest Stewardship Council of Australia (FSC) in Melbourne. FSC is an internationally recognised standard that features strong environmental protection.

TCT Director Craig Woodfield said that this is an exciting new development and has the potential to help break the deadlock in the forestry debate in Tasmania.

"FSC is all about environmentally sustainable logging. It enables private landholders to get a return from the timber on their land as well as look after the environment."

The TCT is a member of Environmental Chamber of FSC Australia and a strong supporter of its standards.

"I encourage all private landholders to investigate the benefits of getting their logging operations FSC certified."
